CAMPBELL COMMISSION

Supervisor Campbell pointed out the following:

- At the last Campbell Commission meeting, they looked at the goals to re-evaluate on whether there are more specific things that can be done to put specific recommendations in place to battle against the opioid crisis.
Brian Young shared there was a meeting last Friday on opioid court. The 7th Judicial District will have two opioid courts in their district. One of them will be in Ontario County by December 1st.
Supervisor Campbell noted the opioid court is to help move people through the process more quickly and by potentially directing them towards treatment. He said part of the issue is eventually what happens after that and how they maintain their corrective course of action so that they don't come back into a different part of the court system a year or two years later. He noted working through different agencies creating peer groups seems to be the most effective model.
